

Acknowledgements

I take great pleasure in writing this section on acknowledgements as part of my doctoral thesis. I take this opportunity to express my gratitude towards all those who have contributed to it in direct and indirect ways because it takes not one but a team to successfully complete a doctorate. Unfortunately, the list of people to be acknowledged, no matter how extensive, is always incomplete and inadequate and these acknowledgements are no exception.

Some people are so industrious that they inspire others with their mere presence. Their energy is like the ever shining sun. Their light is ever-present; one just needs to turn towards them. I express my deepest gratitude towards Prof. Shagufa Kapadia, my research guide, whose contribution in my professional and personal growth is remarkable. I will always be indebted to her for the relentless faith and support that she has shown in me, for stimulating my mind to seek answers and in her own extraordinary ways making me realize my true potential. Thank you Ma'am, for accepting me as your student and for having faith in me. Your patience, honesty and expert guidance throughout the study has been a true gift for my growth. The way you guided me with your words of wisdom, and your insightful questions, they will remain unmatched for the rest of my life. You have been the Sun!

I am particularly grateful to Dr. Rashmin Sompura, my mentor in many ways and my first teacher for statistics. His unfading enthusiasm for listening, understanding and analyzing is inspiring to the core. I am particularly grateful to you Sir, for directing me towards the topic of my research, for performing and teaching the statistical analysis for it and being available at any hour of the day. You have been the Water!

I am extremely grateful for the support, love and countless sacrifices of my parents, Kishori Gupta and Ashok Kumar Gupta. This research would not have been possible without them.

My mother, who safeguarded me from all odds, has been my centre throughout the research. Believing firmly in my capabilities, she has been the silent and most persistent source of encouragement for me, she took care of me like no one ever could, and has always embraced me with her unconditional love. My father's unwavering support and deep engagement with my research analysis meant a lot to me, his insightful words have facilitated me to develop new ideas and think differently. I am truly indebted to my family for all the unconditional support and silent sacrifices they made for me. You have been the Ground!

Heartfelt words of gratitude for my Identical Twin, Arti Gupta for continuously and gently reminding me to take care of myself, showering me with love and showing me the difference in sameness. In many ways, this research is a tribute to being us. You have laughed and cried with me, you have supported me in data collection and helped me by always making me a priority in spite of your hectic schedules. Thank you so much for being. You have been the Sky!

I am deeply indebted to my husband, Manoj Panjwani, for reminding me about the deadlines in direct and not so subtle ways. Your knack for saying the right words every time I was tensed about the deadline, your help in data entry, and your help in making me visualize the finishing line have all come to use. Thank you for your time and all the help with technicalities, and formatting. You have been the Air!

I would like to acknowledge with deep gratitude each and every participant of the study for their time, their generous sharing of their personal experiences during the phases of data collection and for allowing me to enter their personal space. I am extremely grateful to all of them for their invaluable participation in the study without which this research would not have reached its successful completion. You are the Soul!

When this thesis has taken the final shape, I am also grateful to some very significant people in my life whose unconditional love and support kept me going. My Son, Krishna, for telling me to “think positive and focus on finishing the task with a happy mind”; my Brother, Purushottam Chandra, for keeping a check on progress made and offering the value of patience; my friends, Kunal Amin and Bhumika Amin for taking keen interest in my work, and for being my mental-calmer. I am grateful to my friends and colleagues for ongoing conversation, for their time and patience, and timely help for every official or procedural requirement, particularly, Tripti Kathuria, Kiran Lakhani, Jatin Patel and Asmita Naik. My family: for loving me enough, understanding me, and eagerly waiting for me while I was hibernating especially in the writing phase.

A special thanks to Dr. Rachana Bhangaokar for promptly sharing the relevant guidance, extending her help whenever I was in need and making it completely easy to reach out to her.

The journey of my research has been enriching and rewarding only due to the love and support of these genuine and wonderful people in my life.

Veena Panjwani