

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I was Inspired to take up this study during my last tenure in Bank of Baroda as General Manager in a training program called “Life begins at Sixty” . I was excited to learn about success- stories of many people who have excelled in all together new areas after crossing the age of sixty. This also prompted me to take up research work in a relatively new and often perceived as complex topic such as Basel Norms in India.

First of all, I am thankful to my guide Dr. Dilip K. Chellani, Head, Department of Banking and Insurance, Faculty of Commerce, The M. S. University of Baroda, for encouraging me to take up the research work on Basel-III. But for his erudite support, professional excellence and brotherly morale-boosting demeanor, I would not have been able to complete this study.

I am also thankful to my executive colleagues of Corporation Bank where I worked as Internal Banking Ombudsman after super-annuation from Bank of Baroda. I am specially obliged to the Shri. B. K. Shrivastava, the then Executive Director of Corporation Bank who also very kindly encouraged, supported and helped me with the research inputs.

I must acknowledge the great help and valued insights given to me by my daughters Saumya (a distinguished Research Analyst) and Tanvi (a proficient Chartered Accountant). My special thanks to my young executive colleagues in the Risk Management Department Mr. Nishish, Mr. Deepak and Mr. Naveen for having frequent discussions on the implementation of Basel Norms progressively especially Risk Management tools and Risk based supervision etc. I am highly indebted to young dynamic officers of my bank Shri Ravi Shankar, Shri. Kiran and Shri. Siddhant Samal for valuable support in data analysis.

I am also thankful to Prof. Sharad Bansal, Dean, Faculty of Commerce. The M.S. University of Baroda for his kind support and encouragement.

I am also thankful to Prof. Mrs. Sucharita Suresh of Mangalore University and Dr. Khimya Tenani of The M.S. University of Baroda for giving me valuable insight into the statistical analysis.

Last but not the least, I must put on record the tremendous morale support given by my wife Ambalika who has always stood by me for 36 years of my tough banking career and we were looking forward to enjoying our relaxed life after retirement . But this research work for last 4 years has made our life equally demanding and challenging. I have no words to express the sacrifices and understanding shown by her for supporting me to endure the rigors of the research. Her belief in me also made me accomplish the daunting but exciting task.
