

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The completion of this research was possible with the continuous support of several people. I would never have been able to finish without the guidance of my research guide, my parents, husband and other family members.

I deeply express my gratitude to my research guide Prof. Anjali Karolia, Ex Head of Department of Clothing and Textiles and current Dean of the Faculty of Family and Community Sciences, The M.S. University of Baroda for her direction, enduring support, patience and substantial discussion. I am blessed to have a mentor like her who fueled me with self-determination and free will to explore my thought process, area of interest on my own and at the same time her smart supervision to prevent and cure when I stepped wrong. As a matter of fact, she had been a torch bearer throughout the journey to show the direction, how to tackle different situation. She made me to improve, advance, to raise query when needed, to resolve query efficiently, how to build up work better and overall growth in making me a competent individual I am today as per the prerequisites of my career path and as a human being. Her patience is commendable who supported me in the state of several crunches during the study; especially during delay in fabric development due to several factors like denial of artisan to weave the fabric, unprofessional attitude of artisan etc. She has constantly encouraged developing appropriate writing skill as per requirement especially difference between project writing and thesis writing, connecting thoughts in flow and in countless comment, feedback for document revision.

I am indebted to the University Grant Commission for giving me the J.R.F. during the initial period of the study. I would like to express gratitude to the administrative team of the department and the university who helped in smooth paper work at various stages of study. I would like to pay a special note of thanks to Milinbhai who proactively helped at various stages of administrative task at head office.

My sincere thanks & regards to Janakbhai; a Mashru weaver from Patan who made my work practically possible. Being an artisan above seventy years, his work spirit and passion for the craft is commendable. His cooperation in understanding design with its technicality and making me understood about their process and system helped in weaving of entire samples. Without him it would not have been possible. I also extend my heartfelt thanks to all the weavers, master weaver, traders and local people who helped in collecting data and fabric samples regarding the craft. A would like to thanks NazarBhai and his brother late KarsanBhai who helped in connecting Mashru artisans of Kutch-Bhuj.

I extend my heartfelt thanks to Arpita Desai who has been a virtuous PhD companion and colleague throughout the journey of my research. We always extended support to each other in realizing our goal and in maintaining the persistence and tranquility during the work flight.

My deepest thanks to Amrita Doshi, Shaleni Bajpai, Sukriti Patel, Vandita Bhatt and other PhD and research staff friends for their unending motivation, cooperation. I would never forget their chat, beautiful moments, shared information and peer critic which gave enjoyable work time and a conducive environment.

I put my earnest gratitude to Dr. Rajini Yadav and Jenifer for their boost up and Unvarying support.

I convey my sincere thanks to all faculties of the department – Dr. Madhu Sharan, Dr. Reena Bhatia, Miss Vandana Chauhan and Dr. Phalguni Patel for their constructive feedback during departmental seminars and also for extending their help whenever required.

I would also like to thanks Mr. Shovan Sahoo, Director, National Institute of Fashion Technology (NIFT), Bhubaneswar and other academic and administrative officers and staff of NIFT – Bhubaneswar for their kind support.

For accomplishment of research library had played a very crucial role. I offer my heartfelt regards to Mr. Naynesh, Miss Swati Vaishnav and Miss Mamta for their immaculate service whenever required.

I express thanks to my husband Pankaj Kumar for his enormous support, love, care, patience and creating the spark for PhD. Thanks for accompanying during my entire travel, outstation field visit and taking care of our daughter and letting me to work freely. I express my immense love and thanks to my daughter for being patient understanding me during my work. I also convey a special note of appreciation to my mother, father, brother and sister for their love and blessings.

Above all, I owe it to Almighty God for granting me determination, wisdom, health and strength to undertake this research mission and empowering me towards its completion.

Priyanka Kumari