

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am greatly indebted to my guide, Dr. (Mrs.) Kamala Srinivasan, Reader in Home Management, M.S. University of Baroda, but for whose able and sincere guidance I would not have been able to write this thesis. Despite her busy schedule, she kindly gave me much of her valuable time for discussing problems regarding my thesis right from the beginning to its completion.

I am also grateful to Dr. Nalini Ogale, Reader and Head, Department of Home Management, M.S. University of Baroda not only for accepting me for doctoral programme in the department but also for providing helpful advice and suggestions.

I am indebted to my respondents for their kind and willing co-operation, patience and responsiveness. I am also thankful to Mrs. Chakravarty, local family planning officer and Mr. A. Sattar, Project Officer, Rural Development Academy, Laukathi for the help and co-operation they extended to me at the time of collecting data.

I am grateful to the Government of the People's Republic of Bangladesh for granting me deputation and to the Government of India for awarding a scholarship. Without either of these I would not have been at this university to undertake my research project.

Thanks are also due to the staffs of the Smt. H.M. Library, M.S. University, SPI Library and IIM Library, Ahmedabad. I thankfully acknowledge the services rendered to me by the staff of the M.S. University Computer Centre.

At different stages of this research project, I have had assistance and co-operation of many friends. I owe my special thanks to them.

Mr. K.A. Patel had taken great trouble in typing the thesis. I am thankful to him.

I am perpetually in debt of my parents and late parents in-law, who have been the source of constant inspiration, encouragement and morale. My last debt is to my husband and son. I owe my sincerest regards and loving thanks to my husband for encouraging me to take up this research and for putting up with all the inconveniences caused to him during my stay away from home. My son, Epoch, who has been considerate enough to bear with my absence deserves special affectionate thanks.
