ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am grateful to all the benevolent individuals who participated in the study for sharing their ideas and sparing time for this purpose.

Prof. Shagufa Kapadia, my research guide and mentor. Her meticulous approach to academics compels me to demand higher level competencies from myself. I thank her for being a rigorous teacher and at the same time her good-humored nature made research and learning a delectable experience. I am extremely fortunate to find an austere academician, receptive and responsive teacher and a witty and cheerful individual embodied in the role of a guide and mentor to me.

Prof. Rajalakshmi Sriram, Head, Dept. of Human Development and Family Studies for her encouragement and appreciation of my abilities concerning academic learning and research. I especially thank her for taking keen interest in my work and for her valuable inputs during department seminars as well as for sharing academic resources related to my study.

Prof. Prerana Mohite, Former Dean, Faculty of Family and Community Sciences and now Prof. Emeritus, Department of Human Development and Family Studies, for her insightful contributions during the process of content validation of the tool, for her concern for my professional progress and for her feedback during the department seminars.

Dr. Thomas Vadaya, Director of Insight, Institute for Personal Growth, Prof. Rajaram, Former Professor Department of Sociology, M.S. University of Baroda and now Dean, School of Social Sciences, Central University of Gujarat, Gandhinagar, and Ms. Mrudula Paranjape Tere anthropologist for their perceptive contributions during the process of content validation of the tool.

Prof. Jeffery Arnett, Research Professor, Department of Psychology, Clark University, Worcester, USA for his critical suggestions for the synopsis during his visit to the department as a Nehru Chair Professor. Moreover, I am grateful for his kind gesture of sending me the book "Romantic Relationships in Emerging Adulthood" which is invaluable for my work and understanding.

Mr. Apurva Pandya, Doctoral Candidate and Research Fellow in the department, with experience in counseling individuals at risk (HIV) for his discreet inputs during the process of content validation of the tool. He is very proactive in finding new (and free!) software and tools for data management and analysis and I thank him for introducing me to some of them. It makes work not only easier but more efficient. Most importantly, I thank him for scrutinizing the reference section for the thesis.

My Parents, Poonam and friends for their inputs in translating the tool from English to Gujarati.

Ms. Sujata George, Research Assistant at the Women's Studies Research Centre, M.S. University of Baroda, and a Doctoral Candidate in the department, for helping in the process of establishing inter-coder reliability, sparing her time to go through the lengthy interviews and responding promptly.

Priyanka, Anjanaji, Rajeev, Monali, Jigneshji, Rushit, Darshan and Khyati (Pinku) for helping me find some of my study participants.

I especially wish to acknowledge Parimal, Kunal, Bhargav and Vatsal for contributing in many significant ways throughout the process of the doctoral program.

Boney, Amit, Manthan, Chandrasinh and Simran for helping in digitizing the enormous data.

Azra for helping me find participants for the concept map study and also offering her skills in creating a visually very appealing concept map. I also thank her for referring me to people efficient at digitizing the Gujarati data.

Gurjot for helping me to improve two of the 'smart art' figures in the results section and giving me a 'reader's perspective' on some of my 'scholarly' lines!

Dr. Rachna Kulkarni, Dr. Bhamini Mehta, Priyanka, Asmita, Swati and Shalakha for thinking of me and also bringing to my notice, whenever they found any study, conference, newspaper article related to romantic love! Also, a special thanks to Asmita and Bhavmit for many of the 'love is' cartoons.

I appreciate the critical feedback offered by all teachers, friends, colleagues and master students during the department seminars.
