A doctoral research work cannot be completed without support, motivation and guidance from teachers, friends and family members. I take this opportunity to thank them all. Some of them deserve special mention here.

Foremost, I express my deep sense of gratitude to my guide Dr. T.P.LULLA, Reader, Department of Education, Faculty of Education and Psychology, M.S. University, Baroda for her valuable guidance at all stages of my study. Her support and affection, and above all, her positive outlook to life had been strong catalysts for the successful completion of this work.

This work would not have been feasible without the co-operation of the principal, staff members and students of schools for the hearing impaired of Gujarat, and functionaries and trainees of Vocational Rehabilitation Centres and Teacher Education Centres of Gujarat. Specially noteworthy is Ms. Kusumben Mehta, Principal of K.L. Institute for the Deaf, Bhavnagar, who indulging in long discussions enlightened me on many relevant aspects. Similarly, Shri Chandubhai Patel, Principal of Kamalaben Badhir Vidyalaya, Baroda and the staff members of the school deserve special thanks for their co-operation during stages of tool construction and pilot study.

Ms. NISHA GROVER, Principal, Akshar Vidyalaya for Hearing Impaired, Baroda, had been of immense help at different stages, clarifying certain ideas and convincing me of their significance. Discussions with her had been tremendously productive. Above all is the support she gave me, by generously throwing open her wonderful library collection for my use. I am indebted to her.

Ms. SAROJBEN PADHYE, librarian in Centre of Advanced Study in Education, had been an excellent help as a reference librarian, I thank her sincerely.

I express my sincere thanks to Prof. S.B. MENON who had spent some of his valuable time to extend guidance at certain difficult stages of writing.

Among my friends, Dr. SASIDHARAN. T, had been a vital strength for me right from the time of conception of the problem to completion of the study, helping me in all possible ways. His unstinted guidance at stages of tool construction, analysis and writing and above all his affection and motivation whenever I was paced back significantly contributed in completing this work. I fall short of words to express my feelings for him.

I thank MILIND SAHASRABUDDHE who helped me in formulating my research proposal and also in translating English tests into Gujarati. I remember with thanks the discussions that I had with NANDINI BHATTACHARJEE and EISHA KANNADI and UMASREE, my friends and research fellows at CASE, that have helped me at different stages. I also thank them for their sincere efforts in proof-reading the text. DIPTI OZA, my colleague in the department of Education did the perfect work of writing down the Gujarati part of my text, I thank her heartily.

I thank MOHAMMED RASI for his meticulous drawings, which are important in this thesis. ARUNKUMAR and VIJAYAN deserve special thanks for neat and precise typing work and for keeping to the time schedule till the completion of this work.

I remember with great emotions, the love and care bestowed on me by my mother C. MALATHY and father K.A. CHANDRAHASAN which kept me on track throughout the period of work.

This work would have been impossible without the support and large hearted co-operation of my husband, Dr. SHIVAJI K. PANIKKAR, who cheerfully took upon himself most of the domestic responsibilities, during my field work of more than a year and put up with many difficult situations during the study. I find it difficult to thank him. DAMU and CHITTU, my son and daughter, who generally consider my time as theirs, ungrudgingly spared me enough of it to do this study. I am indebted to them.

My thinking has been greatly stimulated by the unremitting work of A. VAN UDEN in the field of language development of hearing impaired, I take this opportunity to express my deep gratitude to him.
