

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I would like to express my gratitude to all those people whose motivation and support made it possible to complete this doctoral research.

The first person who comes to my mind is indeed my guide Prof. Shubhada Kanani, who is the sole person behind creating this work and making it into a reality. She is the one who changed every obstacle into an opportunity and every opportunity into an achievement. Her everlasting energy and enthusiasm have immensely motivated me. Her extensive knowledge in the research topic and profound observations helped me successfully carry out this extensive field based research.

I am thankful to the Head of the Department, Prof. Pallavi Mehta for providing the necessary facilities to carry out this research.

I am grateful to the Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi for providing me the Ph.D. research scholarship.

My heartfelt thanks are due to all the Supervisors, Anganwadi workers and Helpers of the NGO which managed ICDS, as well as to the families of the children, without whose cooperation, this study would not have been possible. Their interest in the research topic and support to carry out the intervention to improve the functioning of the ICDS services is appreciated.

Warm thanks to my dear friends and colleagues for being by my side throughout the study; Minal's support made data collection and analysis less challenging and Aditi was always there to inspire whenever I felt stressed out with work. Thank you buddies Veenu, Radhika, Pallak, Renu, Arti, Pallavi and Panamdi for cheering me up and boosting my confidence.

My deepest gratitude goes to my parents, for their persistent love, support and inspiration for hard work throughout my life. This dissertation would be simply impossible without them for which I am forever in their debt. I owe my loving thanks to my sister Manasi for her everlasting enthusiasm to go ahead and achieve my goal.

Lastly, and most importantly, my loving thanks to my husband Ashish for his eternal love. Lots of hugs and kisses to my infant son for his constant support and patience without which it would have been impossible to accomplish my aspirations.
