Venturing a journey for doctorate is a life changing decision. It took several years for me to prepare my mind to go ahead with the doctoral research. Once I started my journey, I have enjoyed every bit of the learning experience. The journey of my research has given me the much-needed solace in life. However, it would not have been possible without the support and guidance of several persons, each of whom have played an instrument role in my journey.

I take pride to have Professor Lajwanti Chatani as my guide. She has been the ray of light which has guided me at every step of my scholarly pursuit. Her methods and approach to deal with her students have inspired in me respect and reverence for her. I have witnessed her dedication towards the welfare of her students during the times of pandemic when she unceasingly guided and supported her students. My study could not have completed without the insightful discussions and feedback given by Professor Chatani. She has truly proved herself as a friend, philosopher and guide. I truly believe that Prof. Chatani had put an equal amount of labor to help me develop the ideas and insights of my study.

I am also thankful to the Faculty of Arts and Department of Political Science for being supportive and motivating in all endeavors. I have enjoyed and learned from every event and seminar organized by the department. It is an undeniable fact that no student can prosper without an enabling environment, which the faculty has offered to its students.

I also take this opportunity to thank Professor William Pederson of Louisiana State University Shreveport (US) who helped me selflessly. The correspondence done with him helped me gain important insights on conceptual issues such as democracy and slavery. I also thank Professor Dhanesh Patel of The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda who motivated me to enroll for the Ph.D. program in the university and helped me in my initial stages.

I also thank and commend the Lakshya Trust for extending their support and literary resources to me which has enabled me to conduct the research work. The support extended by Shri Manvendra Singh Gohil and Shri Sylvester Merchant, the trustees of the Lakshya Trust, has been incredible in my journey. The friendly and accommodative environment created by the Lakshya Trust deserves to be appreciated. I also thank Ms. Sakshi Parmar who helped me participate in the projects managed by the Trust and get acquainted with the teams which manage the working of the trust.

Last but not the least, I extend my heartfelt thanks to my family without whose support it was not possible to continue with my work. My parents Mr. Mukesh Kumar Gupta and Mrs. Poonam Gupta have imbibed in me a passion for studying the society and look beyond materialistic pursuits. The support and sacrifice of My wife Ms. Kritisha Shukla and daughter Ms. Navya Gupta cannot be described in words alone. It takes great hard work and sacrifice from the candidate as well as the family to achieve a dream, and the role of my family stands true to it. I am also thankful to my friend Mr. Avtar Singh who read my manuscripts with great interest and spent a lot of time discussing the philosophical and conceptual issues.
