

Acknowledgements

I am grateful for the encouragement, advice and perspective of a large number of people. Without them and their support, this work would not have been possible.

My sincere thanks to Prof. Parimal Vyas, Vice Chancellor of The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, Members of the Senate, Syndicate and PG Council, who approved my candidature for self- guide. I am highly thankful to Prof P. S. Choondawat, former Dean, Faculty of Arts, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, who has supported me in this initiative; Prof Lajwanti Chatani, Head, Department of Political Science and to Prof Krishnan, Dean, Faculty of Arts, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, for helping me to smoothly accomplish the task of completion of research work.

As a researcher I have relied on the generosity and knowledge of many people. The fact is that without their help, the work would never have progressed beyond the embryonic stage. I would particularly like to thank Prof Amit Dholakia, Department of Political Science, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda. Throughout this research he has remained a great source of support, advice and knowledge. I am indebted to him for his patience, unflagging support and critical comments on each of the chapters of this research.

I extend my special and sincere thanks to Prof. Philippe Cullet, Senior Visiting Fellow at CPR and Professor of International and Environmental law at the School of Oriental and African Studies – University of London (SOAS), whose works, comments and advice helped me to think in the right direction. In fact, words fail to express my deep sense of gratitude for his keen interest in this research.

I owe a great deal to Dr. Thomas George, Department of Political Science, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, whose insight, patience, and focus helped to shape not only this research but my approach to academic inquiry and research. I am grateful to Dr. Shivannad Patnaik for his initial comments and constant support and encouragement. I am thankful to my students for their co-operation and support.

I extend my heartiest thanks to Prof Mayank Trivedi, University Librarian of The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda and his team for always being on their toes and making relevant literature available to me. My work has benefitted from conversations, discussions and interactions with a number of people with whom I have been fortunate enough to engage over the years, both at the Faculty of Arts, The Maharaja Sayajirao University Baroda and beyond. For listening, commenting and criticising, I thank Prof Fischer Frank, Professor of Politics and Global Affairs at Rutgers University, Prof Ramaswamy Iyer, former Research Professor at Centre for Policy Research, Sushama Yadav, Professor, Dr. Ambedkar Chair in Social Justice at Indian Institute of Public Administration, and Prof Aftab Alam, Department of Political Science, Aligarh Muslim University, Aligarh.

I owe a great deal to Dr. Nidhi Shendurnikar, Faculty of Journalism and Communication, the Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda for her encouragement and support to pursue my research. She indeed is a source of inspiration.

I am thankful to Ms. Aparna Vijayan, Mr. Pradeep Vegad and Ms. Fiona Dias, for their support and wishes.

I extend my sincere thanks to Prof. Shanoo Panday, Department of Hindi, Ms. Mandakini V. Jha, Department of Sociology, Dr. Maitri Sabnis, Department of History, Faculty of Arts, The Maharaja Sayajirao University of Baroda, for their constant encouragement and support.

My heartfelt thanks to my loving and caring Maa and Papa, who have been pillars of strength and real source of inspiration throughout my academic career. I love them dearly and I dedicate this dissertation to them because it is their love and support that has led me here in the first place. I am very thankful to my fond darlings Sakshi, Vidhi, Jay and Madhav for their love, interest and support.
