

A C K N O W L E D G E M E N T S

I owe a large debt of gratitude to my esteemed guide, Dr. I.D. Bhatt, Reader, Department of Psychology, Faculty of Education and Psychology, M.S. University of Baroda, for his valuable guidance at every stage in conducting this research. It was under his able and expert guidance that I have been able to complete this work successfully. I wish to express my sincere and deep gratitude to my guide, whose constant support and encouragement helped me in materialising this research.

With a deep sense of gratitude I acknowledge my indebtedness to Professor N.S. Pathak, Dean, Faculty of Education and Psychology, M.S. University of Baroda, for his valuable guidance, suggestions and ever willing help in completing this thesis, without whose encouragement and valuable guidance, this thesis would not have been successfully completed. It was a great pleasure and privilege to carry out the investigation under the erudite scholarship of this eminent educator. His direction and guidance have helped to mould me academically and pushed me to the completion of my task. My gratitude to him is so varied and rich that I am unable to express it in these few words.

I harbour a sense of obligation to all the respondents for giving me full co-operation in filling the lengthy questionnaire and furnishing the needed information.

(ii)

I wish to place on record a special note of thanks and appreciation to the managers of all the organisations for extending their co-operation and granting necessary permission for data collection.

I record my great appreciation for the co-operation extended by Smt. S.S. Padhya, the Librarian of CASE, Baroda for her valuable help and to the Computer Centre, M.S. University, Baroda for computerising the data.

Over and above all, my special thanks are due to Mr. T.V. Purushothaman, Faculty of Management Studies for his personal interest and care in typing the thesis neatly.

BARODA ;

July, 1990.

NARENDRA R. PARMAR