

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The Journey of this research has been a long and arduous story of challenges, hurdles and triumphs that have finally led to the fulfilment of a cherished, lifelong academic dream which almost lost its path in a bout of illness. So many people have contributed significantly to this process and I wish humbly and happily to acknowledge each and every one who made this possible.

At the onset, I would like to acknowledge Dr. Anjali Verma, Former. Head of the Department of Psychology, under whose guidance I was registered in the past for my doctorate until her retirement. She motivated me to pursue my PhD and gave me space to develop my thoughts on this research.

Words cannot express the gratitude and sincere respect that I feel for my guide, Prof Urmi Nanda Biswas, Guide and Head of the Department, department of Psychology, The MS University of Baroda, Vadodara. She had the faith in my skills to go the extra mile to save me from an unfortunate predicament and take up my research in its final stages under her tutelage. Her constant support, reflective guidance, amazing insights into analysis and conscientious dedication to the completion of this project have helped me grow as a professional and researcher

My thanks are also due to the current Dean of the Faculty of Education and Psychology Dr, R.C. Patel, for the timely facilitation of this project which is so essential to its completion. The energy and attention to detail with which he takes up his duties are exemplary. I also express my gratitude to the former Dean of the Faculty of Education and Psychology, Retd. Prof. R.G. Kothari who facilitated my renewal and extension for this research and also Retd. Prof. S.B Kothari, former Dean, under whose facilitation this thesis took its shape.

I am indebted to my past and present colleagues, who have helped to validate my tool in Gujarati, Mr. Harendra Parmar, Dr. Rudresh Vyas and Mr. Kiransinh Rajput.

I owe a huge bundle of gratitude to Mr. Rashmin Sompura, who despite constraints of time, has selflessly put in so much time and effort, to help in coding and cleaning my data as well as to spearhead my analysis. I found a worthy successor and help in analysis in the form, Mister Jatin Patel who has willingly helped me through the remaining part of my analysis. My data analysis ended in the able hands of Mister Rushi. From time to time, I have turned to Dr. Prashanta Chakraborty, Professor of Statistics at Rajkot, who has stepped in to clear confusions. I value his timely guidance. I further thank Dr. Renu, went out of the way to facilitate my work at the time of submission. I also thank my dear friend Dr. Priyanka Behrani, who always welcomed me with a smile we have shared many experiences and lunches!

I also thank the Collector of Surat, Dr. Kumar, and the DEO both of whom helped me to get permission for my second leg of data collection. I cannot forget to thank the Principals of P.R. Khatiwala, Dumas Road; Daliya school, Rander school; and Lok Bharti school, Citylight - Mrs. Pushpa Malik for permitting data collection. My thanks is also due to Ms Susan Thomas, Ms. Jamila Firdaus, Me. Jahanvi Shukla, Ms Sunita Nair Mukerjee who helped me in getting my clinical sample. I would also like to thank all the children who participated in the study for their time and enthusiasm.

This research got a new lease of life thanks to the kind support and informed guidance from the Academic section staff, firstly to the Deputy Registrar, Mr. Maru, Mr. Milind and Ms. Shraddha, and Mr. Mayur who have patiently steered me in getting my renewal and extension. Nor can I forget to mention the role played by the Department and Faculty staff. Mr. Paresh, Ms. Neela, Mrs. Nilima, Mr. Ajay, Ms. Vandana all of whom have so kindly and graciously welcomed me, guided me and facilitated the paper work for this thesis.

So many others have lent their warm support, my heart swells with gratitude for each one of them: Murtuza, Prarthna, Ruchi, Shruti, Foram, Purvi, Minaz, Nita, Nishtha, Shayma, Prashansa, Neha, Rohit, Esha, Sneha, Parul. I also give a special thanks to VPF members and especial Ms. Ankita, whose meetings motivated me to resume my doctoral thesis. I thank Natasha for helping to manage my clinic duties when I was tied up with my research.

I am grateful to my former guide Professor Uma Hirisave, who guided my M.Phil. thesis at NIMHANS, who has shaped much of my knowledge in and ethical attitude to research. Professor M. P Sharma, Professor L.N. Suman of NIMHANS have also helped in procuring papers, giving feedback and facilitating my library work. My thanks are also due to the librarians of Hansa Mehta library, Roehampton University Library and NIMHANS library, as well as to professional colleagues from the for helping me to accumulate a substantial amount of literature to make my review methodology chapter that helped me take my writing forward. Thank you Rupalee, Amita, Mridula, you have helped to keep my motivation going and to uplift my spirits when thing looked bleak.

I make a special mention for Dr. Jayashree Venkatesh, Bangalore University, who was a 'messiah' for me that made an impossible task possible for my migration certificate. Her act of kindness is invaluable for me. I also thank Dr. M. P Sharma, Head Dept. of Clinical psychology, and Dr. Gangadhar, Director, NIMHANS, who helped me for my 'no dues' and processed my application for Migration. Thanks also to Mr. Madhavan and Mr. Umesh for doing the leg work for the certificate.

Most of all I am overwhelmed, by the love of my family. My husband, Mr. Tamaal Roy, has constantly altered his busy schedule, looked after our children, made numerous train bookings, hotel bookings and air bookings on my behalf. If ever I have had faltered, he has always stood by to pick me up. Saying ‘Thank you’ is hardly enough!

Without my mother-in-law, Mrs. Arati Roy’s support this work could not have been possible. She welcomed the idea of my continuing on my PhD, adjusted her schedule many times, took charge of my duties and understood my need to do this. It is more than I could have asked for.

My Children, Srishti and Malhar, are my little heroes! This work is an outcome of numerous sacrifices that they have made. They have learnt to be more independent and looked after themselves and manage their study schedules when I have not been able to attend to them. They have lovingly let their needs taken a back seat in the last leg of this work. They have tried to understand what I am doing and contributed in their own way.

I am remain eternally and humbly grateful to my mother, Bandana Mukerjee. I am what I am because of her today and would love to be even a part of what she was. I feel her absence deeply and know that this thesis would have made her proud. all over again for what her children have achieved against all odds. I thank my father, Mr. Sudhir Mukerjee, who has an uncanny ability to sense my ‘lows’ even across the distance and inspires confidence in me with his constant support.

Last but definitely not the least; I am grateful to my siblings, Ashish Mukerjee, Tulika Saha, Kavita Mathur and Madhusudan Mukerjee. They are my constant source of energy, motivation, love and support and I know that my achievements give them much joy. They continue to motivate me as very little else in the world can. My thanks also go out to my sister-in-law Mrs. Sunita Mukerjee Nair, who extended her unconditional support in helping me to get a clinical sample in Ahmadabad and encouraged me when I needed it.

Among my siblings, my heart swells in special gratitude for the gentle, rational and placid love and support that I have received from my cousin Dr. Bijoya Chakraborty, Department of Biochemistry, Medical College Jamnagar. Her determination was contagious in fulfilling this task. I know there are others who may have missed my list, not for lack of gratitude but just a lack of space on a scientific thesis. My life is meaningful because of all of you...

THANK YOU EVERYONE AND FOR EVERYTHING!!
