

encouraging me to get the work going. Among them I am most indebted to Shri A.J.Dave for going through the manuscript several times and making many suggestions and corrections. His immense help particularly in language corrections proved very useful to me. I am highly grateful to him.

Prof.A.S.Patel, Ex-Dean of the Faculty, was my guide at the initial stage. I consider myself very lucky to get advantage of his wide research experience and insight, in the preparation of design and tools for the study. His deep technical knowledge enoughtened me for selecting the proper statistics, so that I could do proper analysis of the data.

After the retirement of Dr.Patel, the partial vacuum was created, which was very kindly and aptly filled up by Dr.(Miss) Madhuben Shah, Reader, Faculty of Education and Psychology who guided me at critical stage. I take this chance to express my heartiest thanks to Dr.(Miss) Madhuben M.Shah for kindly accepting the responsibility of my guidance. To work under her expertised guidance and supervision was really a matter of great joy and intellectual experience for me. Her critical reading of the entire manuscript very meticulously helped me lot. Her tireless efforts to check innumerable details for accuracy and consistency, ferreted out weaknesses for improvement and making many precious, trenchant and penetrating suggestions are applaudable. Without her wholehearted and sympathetic encouragement, inspiration and moral support, my work would not have seen the light of this day.

The price a family pays for an investigator's work is high. I express my deep sense of gratitude to my wife, Usha, and daughters by dedicating this work to them, who graciously abandoned a series of family programmes to this work.

Finally I wish to pay my thanks to 'Woh' who directly or indirectly motivated, me, helped me in my progress and prosperity.
